Viet Peace Likely Tonight

It Means Less, Not More Freedom for Vietnamese

warned the people of South Vietnam Monday that their conduct will be tightly controlled after a ceasefire, and that violators of re-strictions will be dealt with severely.

Articles in the semi-official newspaper Tin Song and other papers listed a broad range of activities — from the circulation of Viet Cong currency to desertion from the army that will be punished by summary execution.

Hoarding, price gouging and half a dozen actions considered "pro-Communist" are also punishable by death, the articles said.

The announcement came as no surprise to Western analysts or to Saigon's sophisticated politicians, who have known for months that the government was planning what one opposition figure called "Draconian methods" for the period after a ceasefire.

Now the word has been passed to the man in the street and the man in the rice field. After being told since October that Saigon would never accept a peace agreement that did not meet this or that demand, he is now being told that a ceasefire is imminent and it means less freedom, not more.

"The peace we expect is apparently drawing nearer than ever," a commentary on the state-owned Saigon radio said Monday night.

Men have begun to wear their hair shorter, say barbers and hair stylists from such cities as New York, Los Angeles, many stylists believe short hair is 'in' for women, too.

Like barbers, women's hair stylists agree that hair is definitely coming off. The new styles range from a radical one-inch-all-over cut to a more moderate collar length.

Why shorter hair? It's easier to manage, say the men.

Why shorter hair? It's easier to manage, say the men, who are tired of struggling with hand dryers and split ends. Also, hair dossn't go with the trend to neat, natty fashions. Besides, long hair isn't a shock to the older generation anymore. In fact, they've followed suit, in a moderate way. ### Jail Sentence Hangs Over Him

Times Staff

There was no celebration when Jim McEwen, 49 Linden, turned 21 Saturday.

What's there to celebrate when the minute you step into Washington state you can get elapped into jail for as long as McEwen has faced this possibility ever since he was 18 when on Dec. 14, 1970, he was sentenced to a maximum of 10 and minimum of three years in jail for selling mari-juana at a three-day rock con-

To this day he swears he's innocent. So do his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred (Bunk) McEwen, the rest of his family, his friends and his lawyer, William Klein of Vancouver,

Since 1970 Klein has made three unsuccessful appeals to have McEwen's guilty verdict

On Jan. 12, McEwen was to appear before the court in Washington for final sentence. He didn't. A bench warrant has been sworn out for his-

Bail money of $10,000 has been confiscated by the court. Of this, $7,000 must be paid back to a professional bail bondsman in Washington.

The other $3,000 was put up by McEwen's older brother, John, who'd received it for compensation after being crippled in a car accident.

Contacted in Washington,
Klein said he couldn't really blame McEwen for not appearing Jan. 12. He said the sample of American justice handed out to the youth was not the type to inspire trust. He explained how McEwen was arrested on a warrant made out to "John Doe", his name being filled in at the sheriff's office afterwards.

The warrant was made out on the evidence of three "paid They were kids given a job

Klein said the police of-ficers who arrested McEwen had never seen him before.

He was arrested because he fitted the general description given by the informers.

All through the feial and until now Klein has contended that there should have been a line-up. McEwen was held in jail for nine days before being brought into court.

None of the informers visited the jail to identify him. Instead, they were shown pic-tures taken of McEwen before the teial started. These were shots taken of him in jail.

Klein said the Sky River Rock Festival, at which Mc-Ewen was found guilty of sell-ing marijuana "the size of a pea" on Sept. 4, 1970, had raised a stormy backlash from the community.

In his appeals he referred to the "circumstances of hysteria" that surrounded Mc-

Man in a Crisis

The death of colorful, controversial and able Lyndon Baines Johnson has brought mourning to the United States for the second time within a month. He assumed the presidency in a tragic emergency, held the high office in tumultuous years, initiated some of the country's most popular and most unpopular policies, and retired voluntarily from the political fray when he saw that his Vietnam posture threatened a dangerous split in the nation.

That sacrifice of his career, even against a background of threatened health, will receive due credit, when the history of Johnson's time is written, as a personal act of patriotism. It was unexpected in a man who had lived in political conflict for most of his adult life and relished the manoeuvering and in-fighting of the national scene

Johnson was a tough man, frequently a rough one, but he was an acknowledged master of U.S. Senate strategy and tactics, the sponsor of unprecedented civil rights legislation, particularly in regard to Negro discrimination, a leader in the legislative fight against poverty, and a president whose record should have a creditable place in his country's history.

Harry Truman, who predeceased Mr. Johnson by four weeks, was precipitated into the war-time presidency from his post as vicepresident, but the death of President Roosevelt had been expected. Mr. Truman, although unprepared, was not surprised. But Lyndon Johnson achieved his country's highest office as part of the terrible drama of President Kennedy's assassination. He was sworn into office in the aircraft that was to take the beloved president's body back to Washington, amid the tension and uncertainty of those hours when some authorities feared a calculated attack on the whole top echelon of the nation's administration.

Lyndon Johnson provided strength when it was vitally needed, and although his efforts in the international field suffered from his lack of training and the Vietnam war proved his undoing, his domestic social programs set a high standard of humanitarian ideals and could of themselves form a fitting epitaph on his politi-

Of his love of country and his sincerity in furthering its interests there was never any doubt, even among his opponents. He served his six years at the national helm in the early days of an era which has become increasingly complex and confusing. There can be little question that his full-scale, unrestrained efforts to meet his responsibilities hastened the death of a man who had already had warnings of potential heart trouble.

The conflict brings into focus two important difficulties which arise when maritime nations unilaterally set their own jurisdictional boundaries at sea. In this case Iceland pushed its limits out from the previously accepted 12 miles to 50 miles from shore, Britain and Germany refuse to recognize the extension, which they say is illegal.

So the first difficulty emerges: the ability of Iceland to make its decision effective against fishing states which do not accept it.

The issue has been referred to the International Court at The

> The dispute lends further weight to the argument for an international law of the sea setting limits which will be universally observed. Around North America, with variations in application, fisheries limits have been proclaimed 12 miles from shore. Most South American maritime states have claimed authority over waters 200 miles from the beach. In other parts of the world local ground rules have been established, but not always respected.

Uniformity seems essential if for no other reason than that modern techniques and modern vessels permit fishermen from different nations to ply their trade ever farther from home ports, penetrating areas which some countries consider their own off-shore reserves.

One of the jobs for the next Law of the Seas conference becomes increasingly obvious.

Black Light

Government efforts to ease the unemployment situation have created jobs of all kinds. Among them are jobs directly connected with unemployment itself - counsellors and advisers for people out of work, directors of jobless groups, registrars for the unemployed, and so on. There have even been jobs created to study and coordinate people who have jobs helping the jobless.

With this in mind, could the country really stand a return to full employment? Eliminating unemployment would throw so many people out of work that we might face a serious unemployment situa-

Sure, everyone, can be sorry for himself financially but these men, whether they realize it or not, are part of our education system and I think their acts can only alienate young minds further from what education should be all about

A possible solution: School Boards should employ only the necessary technical help for heating systems, etc., and the general cleaning of schools and care of the grounds be undertaken by the students themselves. Scheduled into work groups, possibly two hours each would do the trick.

Husbandry

In view of the current great struggle Canada is engaged in to prevent the U.S.A. from declaring Canada's natural resources part of a "continental reserve" and thus giving the U.S.A. free access to our water, oil, gas and timber, it seems incredible that the people's government of B.C. should, through the Premier, suggest, as Mr. Barrett has according to a report in the Times January 17. that B.C. and Washington share in

Going Mad

In a recent article under "Viewpoint in the Times, Sidney Katz of the Toronto Star tells us that "The 'Work Ethic' Won't Work Any More." Basically Mr. Katz argues that people will not take jobs, even if they are available, because the young have discovered that much work is "socially irrelevant." "pollution creating," "destructive of the initiative", etc. etc. ad nauseam. People since the dawn of time have disliked work but for some reason they never discovered such ridiculous excuses until now. No one has ever taken the "work ethic" very seriously in spite of Thomas Carlyle. They did, however, give some pretty pregnant thought to the fact that if they did not work they were unlikely to eat.

Society today is enlightened so we provide incomes for those who prefer to enrich the community by the purity of their thoughts rather than sully their souls with repetitious toil. The fact that this toil done by someone else fills their worthless little bellies, escapes Evidently it has also escaped Mr. Katz.

Journalists like Mr. Katz, politicians like Mr. Trudeau, numbers economists, bankers, psychiatrists, labor leaders, you name it, make a very satisfactory living out of the general belief that our problems are complicated. They are not really. We have inflation because too many people want more out of the pot than they are putting in. Wee cover our best agricultural land with housing and industry and wonder why the price of food goes up.

North America indulges in the most wasteful form of transportation and wonders why it has a fuel crisis. We practically destroy our herring fisheries over exploitation and use for fertilizer instead of food. We have thousands of people in government doing work that does not need doing and wonder why our taxes are high. We are bemused by power blocks and parochial interest and we worship expediency instead of tackling fact. "Those whom the Gods wish to destroy they first make mad." - H. E. F. Makovski, 3539 Plymouth Rd.

Gimme, Gimme

Greedy unions are the curse of the country, CUPE, BCGE, IWA, the teachers' union, and the longshoremen, are all tarred with the same brush. They all have the same cry: "gimme, gimme, gimme." No matter how much money they earn, they always want more. Wages and salaries in B.C. are among the highest in the world. Yet B.C. is cursed by more strikes than any other

Alex Markides states over the radio that wages are not the primary consideration. Yet CUPE wants to add a dollars to the wages of the city hall outside workers, to add to the already intolerable burden of taxpayers in Victoria.

Another CUPE spokesman expresses the pious hope that Victoria children will not have their education interfered with. At the same time nearly all the schools of the city are closed down by the strike hypoerisy!-Maurice 2464 Plumer.

bers; among them Otto Jelinek, the former world champion figure skater Valley. But Mr. Jelinek, a Conservative did not deal directly with the financial problems; his general argument was that the Games-would attract wider support if they were decentralized, with events scattereed among various cities having established facilities. The Government's general position, according to Ron Basford, Minister of State for Urban Affairs, has not changed. This is essentially that the organizing committee will have to depend on whatever can be made available through existing programs. The position has, however, been attacked in the Senate by Donald Cameron, an independent Liberal from Alberta

'Not One Dollar'

In applauding the announcement that the physical fitness program will be doubled over the next three years, Senator Cameron entered a caveat. "It is that not one dollar of the funds for the physical fitness program must be used for assisting the 1976 Olympics in Montreal, I want to go on record at this time as saying that I will oppose in every way I can expenditure of between $500 million and $600 million for a program which, by no rhyme or reason, can be justified in Canada. The federal Government, after getting its fingers burned over the costs involved in Expo should think twice about falling into another of Mayor Drapeau's grandiloquent traps which would be developed at the expense of the Canadian taxpayers as a whole."

The comment is revealing because it indicates a suspicion not confined to Sen-ator Cameron that the organizing committee must be proceeding on the asumption that substantial aid, in one form or another, will be forthcoming. Among some Quebec members, the fear is precisely the opposite. Last Wednesday Rock LaSaile, independent member for Joliette, put this question to Mr. Basford:

"In view of the fact that the Olympics organization - committee wiff 'present their Budget on February 3, and in view of the fact that $400 million is absolu s essential to avoid increasing Monister inform us whether the Government has reviewed its position and is now pre pared to grant financial assistance to ensure the success of those Games

Mr. Drapeau's Big Mystery

In reply, Mr. Basford said that there had been no change, adding: "We have had some requests of a non-financial nature from the organizing committee ered by the Government." Pressed fur-

This is ambiguous. It is difficult to believe that the words used have reference to souvenirs sold in Montreal. If the request is that the Government should issue special postage stamps or coins, it is even more difficult to see how such assistance could be considered "non-

In passing it may be observed that stamp sales are not nearly so remunerative as might be supposed. As shown by recent annual reports the Post Office obtains far more money from the proceeds of postage meters and registers than it does from stamp sales, In addition, it extracts a good deal of postal revenue (nearly $55 millions in 1969-70)

It is also to be observed that, in that year, direct and identifiable sales to phi-lion. In the course of a year, the Post Office issues up to a score of specials and commemoratives. Since these are generally available, most of the stamps are presumably bought not by collectors but by citizens interested solely in mailing letters. Thus a single Olympics issue would probably not yield proceeds of more than minor assistance to the organizing committee.

One fact is beyond dispute. The Post Office, troubled for years with deficits, has been forced to increase its rates Indeed, Parliament has been warned to expect further increases. In this situation, the existing program of regular, special and commemorative stamps must be designed to yield the largest possible revenue

It follows that a special Olympics issue cannot be a welcome and painless answer to Mr. Drapeau's problem. It must be at the expense of the existing stamp program, on the assumption that this is rationally planned to yield maximum revenues. In other words the Montreal committee is in reality suggesting that its prospective deficit should be re duced by increasing the already very troublesome Post Office deficit.

Distinction Obscure

The distinction between financial and non-financial requests is thus obscure and in obvious need of clarification.

There is also talk of legal changes to make possible a national lottery for the committee's benefit. This would inject a ing since there is now a good deal of competition for lottery dollars and the any degree of assurance in advance of What may complicate matters in the present Parliament is a realization that the issue is a sensitive one for all par-With the country already divided, the fence is likely to appear the safest spot for the several party high commands, although not necessarily for some private members.

In the circumstances ministers seem to be in no rush to clear up the mystery, opaque as it appears to various critics and apprehensive taxpayers. Nor has the Opposition as yet shown much inclination to press them. Besides the fact that the amount of protected wilderness has actually decreased over the past twenty years, de spite the statistics which indicate that wilderness use is the fastest increasing form of outdoor recreation and regardless of the well-researched reports of the Sierra Club, the essential point is still being missed.

Certain wilderness areas should be preserved because, once gone, they will never exist again.

The forest industry claims that the forest is a renewable resource. Quite true. But an 80-year-old restocked fir forest is not the same as an 800-year-old climax rain forest and, since silviculture treats forests as crops, will never have the chance to become one. "Everything"

Multiple-use means, I believe, the best use for each area of land, not all uses in the same place. But where are the green belts on the salmon spawning streams, the pocket wilderness areas heralded campsites . . . other than in those show places where the heat is on such as the Nitinat and White River areas? Only arm-chair environmentalists believe that multiple-use "has been adopted without exception" by every forest company, and incorporated into their working plans.

However, Mr. Burch of B.C.F.P. right when he stated that, "... it is the performance of the industry that is going to count in the future." Such emotional name-calling and vindictiveness towards environmental groups as went on at the Truck Loggers' convention are no

Lyndon Johnson once said he didn't want everyone to love him, as his enemies often said - he merely wanted them to like him. It was part of his tragedy that he wound up being reviled as no leader since Lincoln. No president ever fell so swiftly from so high a pinnacle.

Times News Services

There was a time, in the mid-1960s, when Lyndon Baines Johnson epitomized the Great Society the United States of America has always claimed to be.

He had won the greatest political victory in that nation's history. He seemed about to resolve all the mouldering problems on the American agenda agenda race and regiona-lism, poverty and inequity, old age and public education, medical care and housing.

The country was united.

Blacks and whites joined hands and marched together. There were no riots, no rancor, no revolution, no dissent-

If it was not a Great Society that was being fashioned, in the typically grandioloquent Johnson phrase, at least it promised to be a better one. It was, the wise men said, the beginning of the Johnson Era. They found a good omen in a southerner leading the nationtoward a new day of reconi-liation and reason.

Johnson himself had pronounced the theme. "Come, he said, borrowing the Bible and the Book of Isaiah, "let us reason together."

When he left office only a few years later, the nation had been cleft in two. Lyndon Johnson, the conciliator, the man of consensus, the complete politician, presided over a nation more deeply divided than at any, time since the

The Negroes, whose cause he espoused more vigorously than any other president, felt he had abandoned them. The South, from whose soil he sprung, rejected him. The students, whose hearts he wanted more whose hearts he wanted more than any group, turned on him as a Judas who took The conservatives found him the liberals too easily diverted from domestic priorities what they presumed to be the ideals of John F. Kennedy.

Had he been a Kennedy he might have chosen a line peare to express his lament. Lyndon Johnson's response came out of a different milieu. He blustered, he bellowed, he lashed out at all whom he felt had let him down along the way. The press, The poli-ticians. The Negroes. The South. The Democrats. The American people themselves. Then, in a softer tone, he expressed a different thought.

It was always clear to him, he said after leaving office, that he had "certain disadvantages" that affected his ability to lead the nation. His upbringing, his limited educational advantages, his corner of the country, and his accent and "the prejudices that exist." He had, he said, "a general inability to stimulate, inspire and unite all the people of the country, which I think is an essential function ular picture, partly self-drawn, partly cruel carica-ture, was a monumental ego-tist with an unbridled passion for power and place. Yet it is also possible to believe he was something else—a man of massive talent, and equally massive insecurities. Looking back on it now, everything he did seemed to fit the pattern.

It is a pattern, the legend-makers would have us believe that began with his first breath. When he began to achieve political prominence, Lyndon Johnson's press releases invariably recalled one anecdote that was supposed to foreshadow his line of destiny. On his birth, it was said, his grandfather went galloping off across the Texas hills shouting to one and all, "A United States senator was born this morning — my grandson!"

Like so much else in the Johnson story, this turns out to have been a Huckleberry Finn story. It may have been with true," . -

The grandfather, the record shows, did write a daughter and say "I have a mighty fine grandson, smart as you find them. I expect him to be a United States senator before he is 40.'

he is 40."
Myth-making, Texas style, was always a part of the Johnson saga. Tall tales sprang naturally from his background. Hyperbole or not, there was enough in the Johnson background to justify a story or two.

His ancestors came to Texas before the Civil War, built a log cabin with port-holes for use against Indian raids, and drove cattle to Kansas, Montana and Wyom-ing. They were Southerners who followed the trail from Georgia through Alabama and

In May, 1924, at the age of 15, he was graduated from high school. There were only six in his class. Lyndon Johnson was then class president. Only one incident from that period gives any clues to the drives that made Johnson so memorable a figure. He reached the Texas State high school debating finals. John-

Johnson was not a particularly good student. Despite his parents' ambitions for him, he was not interested in college. It was at that period he took off on his long journey across West to California, taking "Up and down the Pacific horses and get me a plan!"

When he finally hitch-hiked bis way back to Texas, he took a job driving a highway tractor. He shoveled gravel, drove a truck, pushed a wheel-barrow, and according to Booth Mooney, one of his admiring biographers, "did a reasonable amount of helling around on Saturday nights."
The work eventually bored

The work eventually bored him. As his mother told the story, one cold day Lyndon came home and announced to his parents, "I'm sick of working just with my hands and I'm ready to try working with my brain. Mother, if you and daddy will get me in college, I'll go as soon as I can."

The next fall Johnson entered Texas State Teachers' College at San Marcos.

He finished college in 31/2 years, taught school and coached debating in Houston, and then, in late 1931 at the depths of the Depression, he moved on to Washington.

Johnson always had a men-tor. First his father, whose "overwhelming ambition for his son was governmental po-sition," as his mother re-called. Then it was Richard J. the wealthy King Ranch in Texas. It was Kleberg, then a conservative—congressman, who brought Johnson to the capital as his secretary. Later, Johnson was deeply influenced by Sam Rayburn, the veteran Texas politician who presided over the House of Representatives longer than any man. And, at the pinnacle, there was Franklin Roosevelt, Johnson's model of the master politician.

They went to Mexico for their honeymoon, and then moved to Washington. Appointment as NYA director brought them both back to stayed in the job two years, and then ran for the congres-sional seat made vacant by the death of James P. Buchanan. He won over nine other candidates.

Johnson was not content to wait out a long congressonal apprenticeship. In 1941, he attempted to jump up to the senate. Another death — this-time that of Sen. Morris Sheppard — created a chance, and Johnson seized it.

For once, Johnson failed. In a heated campaign, he lost by 1,311 votes to W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel, then governor of as president, he seemed about to surpass the record of the one man who set the political standard for him, Roosevelt.

At the age of 40, Lyndon Johnson entered the senate. It wasn't easy. With 11 candidates in the field, Johnson led the final returns, but withcut a large enough margin to require a runoff election. He was pitted against Gov. Coke Stevenson. When the final votes were tabulated, after one of the most bitter and memorable Texas campaigns, Lyndon B. Johnson had won by a margin of 87 votes.

For years after, that hairbreadth victory was to be-come a part of the con-troversy that always seemed to swirl around Johnson. There were charges of elec-tion frauds, imputations of unfair tactics. None was ever substantiated.
Whatever the charges, Lyndon Johnson was securely in the senate. He remained there for 12 years, and compiled one of the most successful records in the that chamber of formal custom and ancient Although of different partypersonal philosophy Johnson co-operated fully with President Dwight D. Eisenhower in those years. One of his most notable achievements was in securing pas-sage of the first civil rights bill to pass the senate in 82 years. Despite the graveness of his condition, Johnson bounced back. He took off 45 pounds from his 220-pound frame and, six months after his attack, returned to work. He worked as long and as hard as ever. From then on, you would never think of him as a man who was nursing his health or attempting to conserve his energy. By 1960, Lyndon Johnson was running hard for another office. This time, it was the biggest one of all.

Lyndon Johnson's role in the 1960 campaign is remem-bered, if at all, for one politi-cal fact: in one of the closest elections in American history. Texas went Democratic and it for keping it loyal, and thus helping to insure Kennedy's

The nearly three years that Johnson served as vice-president were a difficult time. All attention centred on the glamorous Kennedys and their new beginnings. Johnson remained out of sight. Whatever differences in style or view between the young pres-ident and his former leader in the senate, Lyndon Johnson remained a model of loyalty to the president. There were many incidents in those days in which Kennedy administra-tion officials made disparag-ing references to the Texan; no one seems to have heard Johnson ever utter the slightest critical remark

Dallas and the assassin's bullet suddenly and shocking-ly altered America and Lyn-

"All I have, I would have given gladly not to be stand-ing here today," Johnson told a joint session of congress and the country four da after the Kennedy assas nation. "The greatest leader of our time has been struck down by the foulest deed of our time."

On Nov. 3, 1964, Lyndon Johnson defeated Barry Gold-water of Arizona by 43,121,985 popular votes to 27,145,161. It was the greatest margin in American presidential history, LBJ topped even FDR's landslide in 1936.

The first half of 1965 saw Lyndon Johnson's presidency-moving forward, still riding the height of popular approv-al. Then, the climate — and the conditions — changed. On two fronts, at home and abroad, suddenly Americans found them confronting menacing problems.

In Selma Ala., the civil rights movement reached a turning point. For the last time in the decade, blacks and whites were joining to-gether in massive protest. That summer there was Watts, and the racial picture of America was something ominously different. Riots began to scar the cities and bring fear in their wake. In Santo Domingo American president dispatched American forces into the Caribbean for the first time since 1927.

Already, dissent on college campuses was beginning. There was increasing involve-ment in Vietnam. Santo Domingo and Saigon seemed linked as unfortunate examples of national policy and direction. American combing already had begun in Vietnam. By summer, the troops were moving ashore in greater numbers. Then they were engaged in offensive combat operations.

In less than a year, Johnson's consensus had begun to break apart. Congress through the senate foreign re-through the senate foreign re-lations committee and its chairman, William Fulbright. of them all.

were raising critical public questions about Vietnam poli-cies. The message was carried far beyond Capitol Hill. It was televised into millions of American homes. Television provided other sights and sounds that portrayed the divisions taking place. In 1968, the dissent moved into direct political action. First, Eugene McCarthy, and then Robert Kennedy, the heir to his brother's mantle, chal-lenged Lyndon Johnson. The Democratic party began to dissolve under the bitter strife. Two more assassi-nations—another Kennedy and Martin Luther King, the Negro apostle of non-violence further exacerbated the na-

OTTAWA (CP) - The fedsupport for proposed new housing programs at the fe-deral-provincial housing conference Monday.

But the federal delegation faced rougher weather today in talks about money and the federal role in housing. In fact, a collision seemed likely with Ontario over the prov-ince's demands for large housing grants with no strings

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said after the Mon-day adjournment that there was generally favorable reaction to his proposals.

Teck to Appeal Afton Ruling

VANCOUVER (CP) — Teck Corp. Ltd. will appeal the judgment of British Columbia Supreme Court Justice Thomas "missed." Keevil said that Afton is also seeking a legal opinion as to what action may be open to it. This, he said, is quite aside from the appeal by Teck Corp.

Ltd., Dr. Norman B. Keevil Jr., said Monday following a meeting of the Afton board of directors.

Keevil, an Afton director who is executive vice-president with Canex June 1

Keevil, an Afton director who is executive vice-president of Teck Corp., was elected president of Afton at the meeting, replacing Chester F. Millar. Teck Corp., has majority representation on the board and a majority share position.

"I understand that Teck's legal counsel is of the opinion that grounds for an appeal exist and that they are being instructed to apply for an early hearing," said Keevil.

"The original proceedings were to set aside an agreement between Afton and Canex transferring the complete management of Afton's Kamloops copper property to Canex. The shareholders of Afton subsequently approved of the bringing of the proceedings and disapproved of the agreement.

Teck sued and, later in June, called a special shareholders' meeting which approved of the legal action. After a two-month trial Mr. Justice Berger held that Miliar, Price and Haramboure had acted within their powers and in good faith.

"Miliar obviously does not share the views of the share-holders in this respect (the appeal) and it is with regret that the directors considered it desirable to elect a new president," said Keevil after the board meeting.

Following Mr. Justice Berger's judgment, issued Dec. 8, Canex resumed management and exploration drilling on the Afton property.

Quebec Veto

The Vancouver Stock Ex-change is considering a plan to defy a Quebec veto and go it alone by revising commissions on stock trades, Van-couver Stock Exchange buard of governors vicè-chairman Michael Ryan said today.

Quebec exchanges on Mon-day voted against proposed revisions on stock commis-sions, although the proposals had earlier been approved in Toronto and Vancouver.

Ryan, who succeeds George Wright as chairman of the board on Jan. 25, said today one of his first acts as chairman will be to call for a dis-cussion on whether Vancouver should unilaterally change its of the Ontario Securities Commission before rates can be changed there.

The hearings were set to start Jan. 24 but the veto by Quebec stock exchange members has brought about a postponement. Now they can not be rescheduled for several months, Ryan said.

Earlier, Wright, the board chairman, said Vancouver exchange members were exas-perated by the Quebec action.

"However, we will get back to work as quickly as we can to try to present a new schedule. But with our experience in the past, the new schedule may be a long way down the

Curling: Glen on Track; A Veteran Comes Through

"Glen is probably curling as well as he ever

The speaker was Vern Kaspick, third on the Glen Harper rink from Duncan, one of four Island rinks which last week-end qualified for the Pacific Coast Curling Association play-offs at Nanaimo, Feb. 2-4.

Besides, it's the first time in six years that Glen has made it into the Coast finals, after twice previously having made it into the Coast finals, after twice previously having represented the province in the Brier.

It's been a long drought, and Kaspick was the first to admit it, and should know the Harper story better than anyone else. He's the only one who's stuck with the personable Duncan skip since 1960 when Harper first made the national final.

"It's no secret that Glen wasn't making his shots the last few years," Kaspick said. "That's why we didn't get the PCCA finals. "But now he is, and is curling extremely well."

If the present Harper rink has Vern at third, Hugh Williams at second, and Doug Belton at lead; the original Brier rink had Kaspick throwing lead rocks, Freddie Duncan second, and Harvey Hodge third. Harper won three games in that Brier.

Then, in 1963, he repeated as B.C. rep. With Hodge, Gary Merrett, and Kaspick up front, he had an 8-2 mark at Brandon and was second nationally.

A Few Errors in Strategy

Twice since then he has been in the mixed final, had a second-place finish with Vera and By Wilson in 1966, and with the Kaspicks, Vern and Sharon, in 1970.

It was in 1970 however that he was hit with his biggest disappointment in men's play. That's when the PCCA final was at Duncan, his home club, and Glen failed to qualify.

"It would have been nice to have played at home," Glen

But he recovered, and went on to win the B.C. mixed, while Lyall Dagg came out of Duncan as the Brier rep.

Ever the strategist, Harper suggested that young Tim Horrigan (21), whom he defeated in a close one Saturday night, is a fine shotmaker, but that "he made a couple of mistakes on calls, and it hurt him."

Tim himself later admitted that he called a "couple of bad ends" against the other Duncan representative, Gordon Stewart, in Sunday's final, and ended up being bombed because of them.

If Stewart's win was a shocker in the Island final, it was a shocker in the Island final in the only local. Up in Duncan they appreciated his talents more. Two years ago Stewart was runner up in the Canadian Legion national finals, and this season, he's right at the top of the men's leagues in the company of Kaspick and Fredie Duncan. Thus it actually was no surprise in Duncan when he ended up in the coast finals.

From Howie, a Solid Assist

He was steady throughout, owned most of the four foot, most of the time, and lost only two games, both by one rock, and against Horrigan in an extra end when he failed to stick on a takeout in the 12th with the score tied.

A millworker from Crofton, Stewart, 50, had a back operation a few years ago, "but everything's fine now". And Stewart, for his part, said he thought he had curled better in the extra-end loss to Horrigan than in his winning effort.

But then the crew-cut, grey-haired veteran said it best for all the 50-and-up club, when he told the youngsters on the Horrigan rink afterwards:

"Think of all the years you have ahead of you."
This time, youth could wait. The oldest skip there, had decreed it - to the youngest.

HOCKEY TIPS

ในแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบกับเก็บสักษ์แบบแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบ Timing is the key to blocking shots. The basic idea is to drop to one or both knees the instant after your opponent has shot the puck.

If you anticipate the play, you are a sitting duck for a deke and won't be able to recover before your opponent is around you. If you wait too long, chances are the puck long, chances are the puck-will miss you and instead of blocking the puck you will screen your own goalie.

To block a shot on one knee, drop to one knee and stretch your stick out in front. If you are deked, you still might able to poke or sweep-check the puck-away. With only one knee on the ice, you can get back on your feet much

Ald. Douglas McLelland led a bitter attack at Monday's Oak Bay council meeting against a contractor who damaged Mary Tod Island, one of Oak Bay's parks, during construction of a breakwater.

The contractor said today he has started to repair the damage.

Thomas Blackwood, president of Pacific Pile Driving Co. Ltd. said he subcontracted the work to Oliver Equipment Ser-vice and Supply Ltd. He said an Oliver employee was told that, instead of put-ting his equipment back on a Vancouver-bound scow, he should take it ashore on the island.

"He was put on shore and told to stay in the area allotted for the breakwater, But he dug a pice dirt pad for himself and his bulldozer. By the time we got there it was done and it was too late to stop it." Blackwood said. We have put all the dirt-back and we will level and seed it

School board representatives from the four lower Island districts met last week and voted unanimously to study details of the proposed Victoria Outdoor Environment School.

Facilities including living quarters and classrooms could be built on a large acreage of land so children could have indoor instruction as well as outdoor explorations.

Emphasis of the program would be to take low-income children out of the urban environment, giving them a chance to see beyond their crowded, confined world into the world of nature.

"Outdoor trips have already been undertaken by some more affluent schools," said Al Knight, a Victoria board trustee, who has been pushing outdoor studies for several years. "But poorer, urban schools, where the children really need."

"I think the program would be of the greatest benefit to these children who have so few advantages."

Knight admitted the cost of the program might be high but added that individual schools had been able to finance week stays at the YMCA's Camp Thunderbird and costs of the outdoor school would be shared by four school districts.

He said they hoped they might be able to get a grant of land and help from the provincial government. Some money might be siphoned off from other curricular activities.

"We'd probably have two or three classes—maybe 80 to 100 kids each week. It would be a good lesson in sociology too," Knight said.

'There'd be one permanent director of the school anyway but the teachers would be with the kids and they'd probably be glad to get out of the classroom," he added.

Knight said the school would teach children ecology, the unity of nature and perhaps "some rules of life they could

Clinic Concept Urged to Cut Medical Expenses

Following is the last of three articles on the changing health care scene in the province.

Expected changes in health care will affect all health especially the medical profession.

The centres adopt a team health maintenance

The composition of health care teams can be altered to fit the needs of individual communities. For example, Victoria with large numbers of elderly people would proba-bly want to include a physio therapist to assist stroke victims and arthritics.

Wallace thinks savings in health care costs would be eaten up by administration costs. He also said that if doctors are paid a salary instead of a fee for service there would be "a whole raft of implications" involved.

He explained that there is.

"no way" doctors could sup-ply the present amount of service working - civil service "None of us come close to

"At present we look after our own affairs and do the best we can."

Dr. David Bachop, president of the B.C. Medical Association, said Monday in a telephone interview that he is "not convinced the (health centre) system will be any mort efficient or cheaper than the present system."

Bachop gave the official re-action of his association to the Hastings Report at the Hastings seminar held last October at the University British Columbia.

Results Disastrous

At that time he warned that "in many respects, the Hast-ings report resembles a philo-sophical treatise, a product of political ideology which might well have disasterous results if hasty attempts to convert unproven theory to reality were made."

Bachop said physicians are concerned because they think a single health care system using a significant number of community health centres "may create a depersonaliza-tion of health services with considerable regimentation and loss of freedom of choice for patients.

He said the association's

The geographical distribu-tion of doctors in the province is a problem for both the gov-ernment and the medical as-sociation.

Areas Complain

Residents of remote areas with small populations com-plain that although they pay the same taxes as city dwellers they are cut off from health services most people take for granted such as access to a hospital in emergencies and specialized care.

The provincial government may pay for the university education of health centre personnel in return for a period of service in remote communities. The Hastings Report suggested that doctors who move to communities al-ready well supplied with medical services should not regot the message and is trying to find a solution to the problem of over-doctored urban

Dr. William Jory, in an arti-cle in the BCMA News, writes that the problem is "one over which we could have the greatest control. It is at the same time our weakest flank and on no other issue can we be so readily charged of drag-

He points out that "nearly all communities of adequate size to support one have a resident general practitioner.

"However it is when a small community loses its doctor and there is a delay in finding a replacement that community realth suffers and there is a political outcry.

Jory would like to see in terns required to do part of their clerkship "outside the teaching hospital circuit". He and countries be urged to practise for two years in rural

He adds that "it might be necessary to go further and insist that all new doctors should practise for two years outside metropolitan areas unless a specified need is shown to exist in the cities."

Three Canadian Plays Billed

By AUDREY JOHNSON Times Staff

Victorians have the opportu-nity to view full-scale productions of three original Canadian plays next month — two here and one in Vancouver.

Aside from David French's Leaving Home and James Leaying Home and James Reaney's The Killdeer which play concurrently, Friday through Saturday, Feb. 3 at Langham Court and Bastion Studio on Yates Street, the Vancouver Playhouse Theatre is presenting Ann Henry's Lulu Street at the Queen Eli-

Lulu Street at the Queen Elizabeth over the same period.

It has been said frequently that one of the disadvantages
Canadian playwrights have to endure is that their scripts are so often submitted to penny-pinching, bare-bones production.

True in many instances, but not where the Vancouver Playhouse group is con-

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Hope for People With Nerve Deafness

I read in a release from the University of Southern California that there are 8,000,000 people in the United States who are hard of hearing, and about 80 per cent of those persons suffer from what is known as nerve deafness. This type of deafness is due to something wrong with the nerve that normally carries sound from the ear to the brain and has been thought of as incurable in most cases. The bone surrounding the ear is so extremely hard that it has been very difficult for researchers to learn much about the failure of the hearing nerves to work.

Now, Dr. Everett C. Hughes, Ph.D., of Pasadena, and Robert H. Arthur, Ph.D., of Arcadia, Calif., have shown that with a certain type of electrical stimulation of these nerve cells with a radio current, 36 out of 78 nerve-deaf persons treated have shown significant gains in their hearing, averaging 18 per cent of improvement. This improvement was lost in three to five months, but with more treatment the hearing was improved again. Good was the fact that with treatment, the "head noises" that the nerve-deaf persons hear tended to diminish.

This is hopeful news for persons with nerve deafness, and I will be watching with interest to see more news of the work of Drs. Hughes and Arthur.

NEW TYPE OF TREATMENT FOR A 'SLIPPED DISC'

Of late, I have been reading of remarkable cures of the low back pain which comes when an intervertebral disc (a rubberlike cushion between two spinal bones) becomes diseased or so displaced that some of the material slips out and presses on the

Dr. Vert Mooney, an orthopedic surgeon of Downey, Califor, wrote a big article about the new treatment in Dow Jones' "National Observer" (Nov. 18, 1972). He said that what is done is that a chemical called Chymopapain, made from the papaya fruit that grows on a tree in the tropics, is injected into the diseased disc and supposedly dissolves out of the disc. Dr. Mooney says, that it is a "very safe, and very effective means of treating low-back pain."

However, so far the material is not on the market, because the U.S. Food and Drug Administration people are not yet convinced that it is effective and safe.

Unpopularity

One result of growing Labor strife, is an incrreasing un-popularity among Canadians for Labor Unions. One reason lies in a resentment of strikes in services affecting the public. Another may be lack of communication between the Unions and the people. Some evidence of this is shown in the fact that when asked to name an argument in favor of Labor Unions, almost half the adult population (48%) cannot think

Among the other half, almost one in ten (9%) say definitely that there is no reason for favoring Labor Unions. These people claim that Labor demands have gone beyond control; that they have served their purpose, and that their effectiveness has gone. "There isn't any argument for them right now" many of them say, "they just cause trouble."

This leaves little, more than four in ten Canadians who can give a reason for endorsing Unions. Among these, the can give a reason for endorsing Unions. Among these, the largest segment (19%) speak in broad terms, of the general protection unions give to workers, and their role in preserving the right of Labor. Little more than one in ten (12%) approve the existence of unions because they keep wages up, and help to establish decent living standards for the members. A very small proportion (4%) believe that the Unions provide job security and therefore help unemployment.

Another 8% speak in terms of other benefits usually associated with Labor Unions, including such areas as obtaining shorter working hours, better working conditions, or say that unions give Labor a chance to air its views. Others in this segment, claim that Unions in this country should be all Canadian, or give other miscellaneous endorsements.

These attitudes were established in a study conducted with a random sample of 671 adults, in personal, at-home interviews across the nation, in late October. A sample of this size produces results accurate within a 4 percentage point margin of error, 19 out of 20 times.

Words to Remember Around the Garden

You won't get beyond the first year in your hobby of gardening without realizing the need for learning and remember-ing new words. You need them for asking questions, you find them when reading even this column; and you will continue to use them so long as your interest is maintained in plants.

If you would believe it, I would go so far as saying your interest will grow as your acquaintance with gardening terms and plant names increases. A whole new range of reading ens up for you.

In the first year you need to have a grasp on the difference between annual flowers or vegetables and those which are biennials and perennials.

You discover by experience that the annuals grow from year and die down by fall or early winter.

Biennials are sown one year, flower the following year, then either die down or are discarded as not likely to survive-winter in good enough health to be useful for a second season.

Contrasted to both these are herbaceous perennials, plants sending up new soft stemmed (herbaceous) growth each spring from underground rootstocks.

Shrubs and trees are, in the literal sense, perannials but their stems are woody and persistent above ground for many years. An arbitrary difference between a shrub and a tree is that the shrub begins to branch out near the base whereas a tree, if undamaged in early life, will reach upwards for varying distances before sending out branches.

When you come to the names of plants, you soon discover their awkwardness disappears when you know their meaning. They are not all of Latin origin, though for uniformity of spelling, they have been given a Latin form.

Thus they are understandable in any part of the world for they remain the same in all languages through all time.

Even in your first year you have become familiar with such beautiful botanical names as dahlia, aster and clematis, fuchsia and primula, so there's no logic in refusing phormium and photinia.

Dahlia was given to honor a Swedish botanist, Andrew Dahl; aster is Greek for "star", which the flowers resemble with their pointed petals; clematis is from the Greek clema, meaning a vine branch, referring to the vining habit of the climbing species. Phormium is from the Greek phormos, a basket leaves of these plants are used for basket making in New Zealand, hence New Zealand-flax is the accepted common name. Photnina is from the Greek photeinos, shining, the glossy leaves of this shrub. Learn the spelling, and let pronunciation take care of itself. It is simplified if you say each syllable in any easy flow-

Don't try to hurry the sounds, and never mind if you think you are not saying them the way other people do.

You will have the correct spelling and that is what counts when going after more information.
Try the scheme this year, and see if you are not more than doubly interested by the end of the growing season.

Tribe Exposes A Hidden Side

Retiring Saanich adminis-prator John Tribe exposed a hidden side and briefly be-came a philosopher at his meeting of council for the little man, he urged when given the opportunity to speak freely to the mayor and aldermen.

Don't take the function of government too far away man-on-the-street to council from the people, Tribe cau-tioned, saying he believed in now in Saanich.

He saw the usefulness in sewer trunks and outfalls, hospitals and land-use planning, he said. Then he asked:

'Is the regional district starting to drift away from the people, trying to take on too many functions - they talking about solid waste disposal. He mused that people may already be strangers to the regional district: "I doubt if people of Victoria know finding them myself."

He said he did not want to

"tread on any toes," and stressed the trend toward bigness as opposed to the need of public access to council, especially with the shift in Canada from an even 50-50 split of rural-urban population to 80 per cent urban.

As the Commons debated the problem of soaring food costs—up 8.8 per cent last year—all major parties appeared to keep a wary eye on the farm vote. Spokesmen emphasized their belief that farmers still are not getting enough for their products.

But MPs disagreed on whether that means prices are excessive. Several said consumers want cheap food at. the expense of the farmer.

Formal voting was deferred unfil today on an amended government, motion which would set up a Commons committee to enquire into food price increases. Also deferred were votes on several

Backroom Infighting Erupts on Committees

OTTAWA (CP) — With every committee vote counting heavily in this minority Parliament, backroom political infighting is in full tilt over the appointment of chairmen—or

The government says it is willing to give up some committee chairmanships to opposition parties. But the opposition, so far, is resisting the idea, arguing that the government is making the offer because it is low on manpower.

"We argued for more opposition chairmen in the last Parliament," Stanley Knowles, the New Democratic Party House leader, said Monday.

LEGAL BEAGLE MISSES SHOW

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Two women charged with presenting an immoral performance in a local night club have been remanded until March 5 after an appearance in court Monday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Biggar was charged with operating an establishment that offered an immoral performance and Linda Adams, 20, a dancer at the club, was charged with appearing in an immoral performance.

The crown alleges nude dancing before an audience took lace.

Crown prosecutor William Turlock asked the trial be held as soon as possible because he believed performances were continuing.

Defence lawyer Rafe Mair told Judge Erik Benroft, however, that he had been to the club Saturday night and, "much to any sorrow, the bottomless performance was not repeated."

Totem Pole Taken

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arnold Salvati of Vancouver was given an unconditional discharge in provincial court Monday on a charge of disfiguring a totem pole. Judge William Selbie was told the offence took place in March, 1967, near Skeena Crossing. He was told Salvati climed to the top of a totem pole on an Indian reservation and removed a three-foot carving of a man.

Injunction Granted

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)
Canex Placer Ltd. was granted a British Columbia Supreme Court Injunction Monday restraining Local 959 of the United Steelworkers of America from picketing at the company's Endako mines operation, about 100 miles west of here.

Economic Mistake

VANCOUVER (CP):— Ronald Ritchie, senior vicepresident of Imperial Oil Ltd., told the Vancouver Board of Trade's annual meeting Monday Canada would be making an economic mistake if it restricted future primary resource development in favor of secondary manufacturing in the "misplaced hope" of opening more employment opportunities.

He said a study was currently under way at the University of Toronto to determine the effect of primary and secondary industry emphasis.

Oil Spill Fine

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Dutch vessel Grotedyk was fined $1,500 in Vancouver provincial court Monday after the ship's owners pleaded guilty to dumping oil into Vancouver harbor. Court was told only a small amount of oil was released from the ship vancouver (CP) — The ratio of students, to teachers in Vancouver is appalling in comparison with figures from 12 other Canadian cities, school board chairman Peter Bullen said Monday night.

Ratio Appalling

Bullen told a school board meeting that Vancouver's ratio of 25.5 students to a teacher is "incredibly behind" other districts. Vancouver would have to hire 444 teachers to catch up to the district with the next highest ratio, metropolitan Toronto's 22. To match Ottawa, the city with the smullest ratio of 18 to one; Vancouver would need to hire 1,156 more teachers.

CHICAGO (AP) — New crop soybeans advanced 6 cents a bushel on the board of trade Tuesday, but the nearby, old crop options were down 3 cents.

Wheat futures gained 3 cents and corn 2 but oats were down 1.

Soybean oil prices were irregular, while soybean meal declined around $2.50 a ton.

The disparity of prices in the soybean pit was attributed to spreading activity by some of the local professionals. They sold the nearby March option and sold new crop options.

Viet Peace Likely Tonight

It Means Less, Not More Freedom for Vietnamese

SAIGON (WP) & The government bluntly warned the people of South Vietnam Monday that their conduct will be tightly controlled after a ceasefire, and that violators of restrictions will be dealt with severely.

Articles in the semi-official newspaper Tin Song and other papers listed a broad range of activities — from the circulation of Viet Cong currency to desertion from the army that will be punished by summary execution.

Hoarding, price gouging and half a dozen actions considered "pro-Communist" are also punishable by death, the articles said.

The announcement came as no surprise to Western analysts or to Saigon's sophisticated politicians, who have known for months that
